BECOME A T&DI SUSTAINING CORPORATE MEMBER

"A sustaining corporate membership is not just a dollars and cents value but a bricks and mortar value. It shows a corporate commitment to excellence in infrastructure."

Geoffrey Baskir, C.M., AICP, LEED, Board of Governors

As an active member of the Transportation and Development Institute (T&DI) of the American Society of Civil Engineers, you and several members of your firm are already aware of the professional benefits that the Institute offers. In appreciation of this, T&DI offers Sustaining Corporate Membership to companies such as yours to encourage active involvement of more of your employees in this Institute.

Sustaining corporate membership can include practicing engineers, research scientists, academicians, technologists, material suppliers, principals and policy makers. Our goal is to embrace all disciplines engaged in research, planning, design, development and operation of transportation systems and land use. We are committed to advance the profession and meet the needs of all our members through our activities, such as specialty conferences, forums for professional papers to be published and integrate transportation with land planning and development – singularly or in cooperation with other organizations– at the national and local levels.

$1,500 annually ($4.11/day) provides your organization with:

- T&DI membership for five(5) individuals who would not be eligible for ASCE membership.
- Prominent exposure for your firm at T&DI conferences.
- A link on the T&DI website to your firm's website with feedback on "tracking" of your link.
- Inclusion in a listing of all sustaining corporate members in the T&DI bi-monthly e-newsletter.
- Five (5) individuals receive reduced-fee admission (half of member price) to any T&DI specialty conference.
- A "Sustaining Corporate Member" wall plaque.
- Use of a reproducible T&DI logo to affirm your membership.
